Happy Teachers' Day - From the Principal's Desk

Ms.Asma Nainar (Principal/ Director)

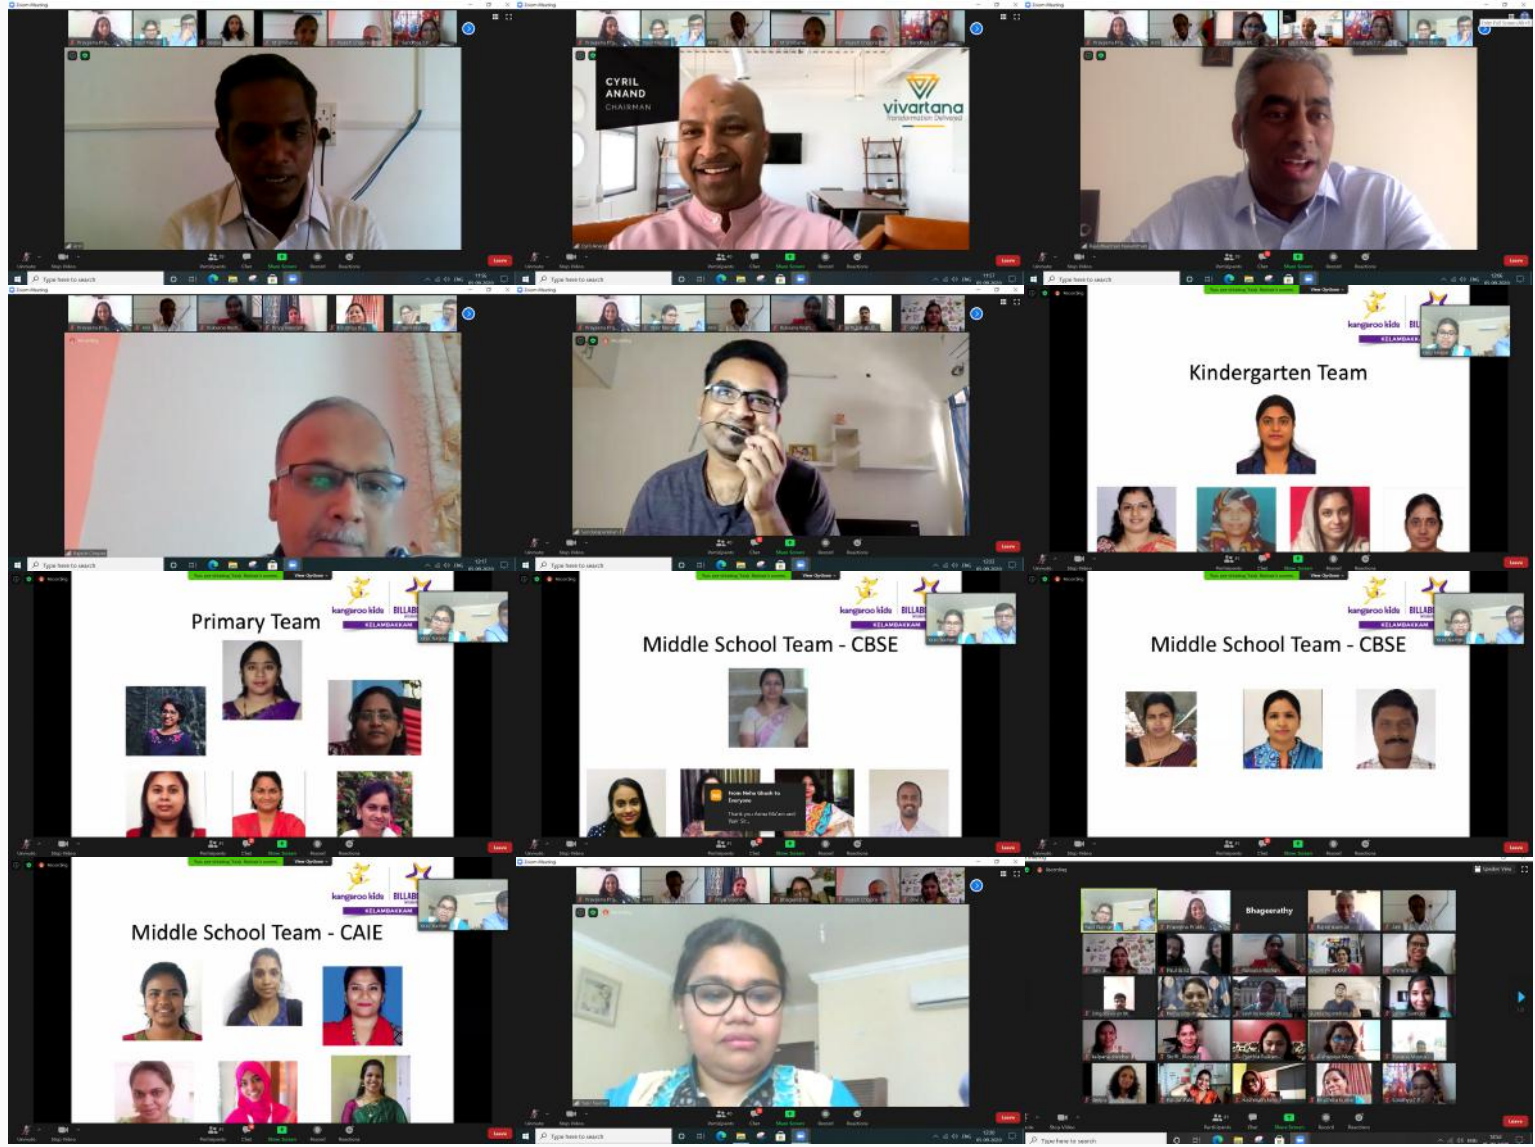

The light of the world, the beacon in the dark, and the hope that gives us the strength to survive are our teachers.

“HAPPY TEACHERS DAY”

A Teacher is a friend, philosopher, and guide for life. They impart good values and instill confidence in young minds and give them hope to dream big in their life. Teachers make the best effort to turn their students into responsible citizens. There is no better time to acknowledge this fact and express gratitude to our teachers and that is on their very special day, the Teachers Day.

A teacher inspires hope, by igniting our imagination and instilling a love of learning. Teaching is such a noble profession and the mother of all professions. Teachers work selflessly towards shaping the future generations in taking up higher challenges and helping us to climb the spiral of success where the pinnacle surpasses the sky. “Good teachers build knowledge, Great teachers build character” – once again “Happy Teachers Day”

A Virtual Thank You to all our Heroes

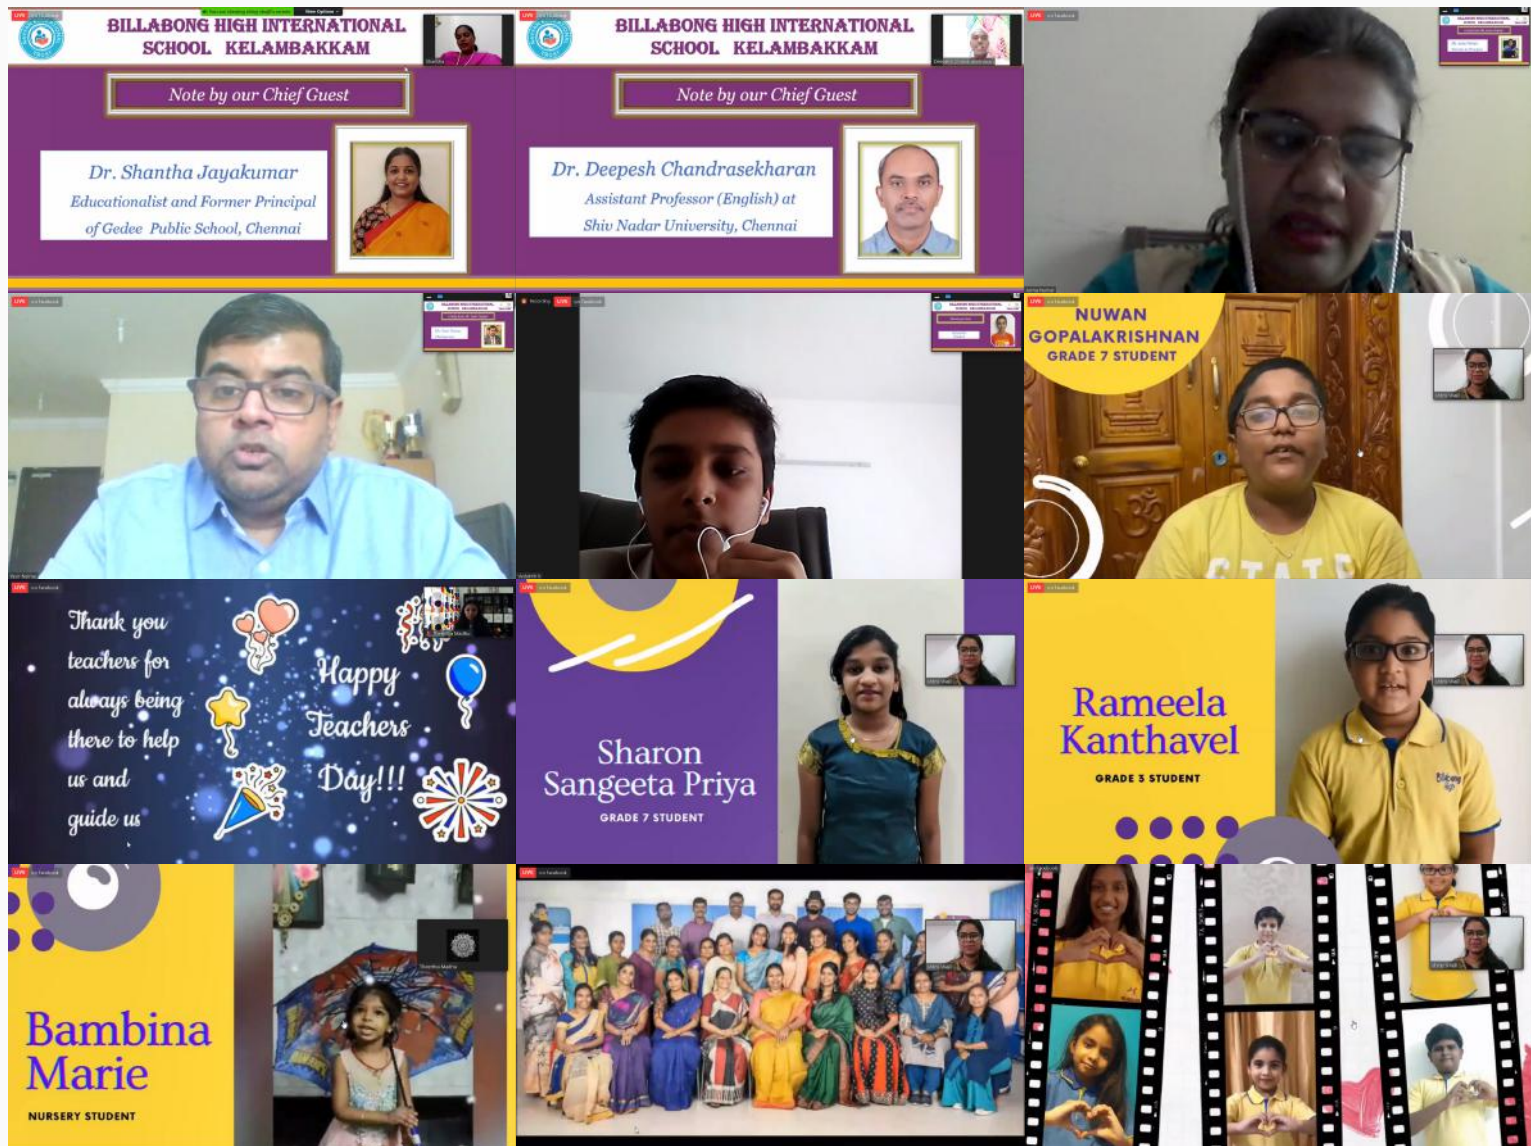

Ms.Shiny Shajil (Activities Coordinator)

"Your heart is slightly bigger than the average human heart, but that's because you're a teacher".

The Student Council of BHIS-K, along with the student community weaved together a surprise virtual party for their Teachers this Teachers' Day. The Teachers were welcomed with much splendor as they experienced a tribute like never before. Gracing the occasion, we had Dr.Deepesh Chandrashekar and Dr.Shantha Jayakumar, two renowned educationalists with years of experience in the field of teaching. Adding glory to the ceremony, was the presence of our

Chairperson Mr.Yasir Nainar, and our Principal Ms.Asma Nainar. The programme was hosted gracefully by our Student ambassadors Theertha Madhu and Saathvik of Grade 9. The event began with the school prayer rendered beautifully by Prathiksha of Grade 3. What followed were three little angels, Shree Harshini of Grade 1, Dhanya Shri of Grade 4, and Isha Sreejesh of Grade 2A who shared some quotes on Teachers in 3 different languages. Then began the actual surprise for their teachers, 2 splendid videos completely orchestrated by the students where they thanked their teachers for becoming who they were today. The appreciation video by Deepika of Grade 7 was cheery on top of the event. By the end of the session, Vedanth of Grade 8 proposed the vote of thanks where he thanked the entire teaching and admin faculty for their tireless contribution towards making the world a better place to live in. This programme was indeed extra special for all of us because we could see our young budding children take up the responsibility of organizing such an impeccable event by practicing teamwork. A special day was made extra special indeed !!!

Tic - Tac - Toe

Ms.Padmapriya Sreeram (CAIE Middle School Coordinator)

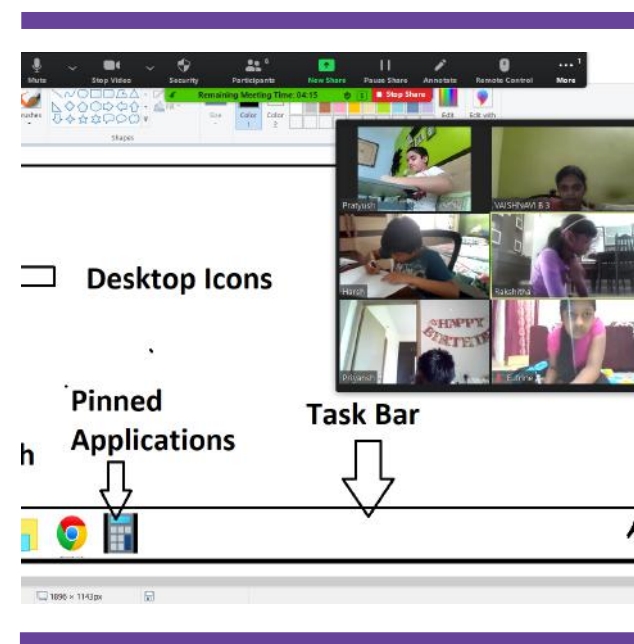

Students struggle with the instructional terms that they're presented with, particularly in Algebra. They look at the context and often don't read the instructions. To beat the monotony that accompanies delivery and execution of the concept, our ninth graders engaged in a fun review activity. The kids got nostalgic as they played the game which was an adaptation of tic-tac-toe that is usually played on the whiteboard or at the back of the notebook with the same objectives. To get 3 noughts or 3 crosses in a row but the students must get answers correct to gain the nought or cross. Our learners had loads of fun even as the game presented itself with lots of learning while answering the questions. Overall a lively review activity to comprehend concept clarity.

Learning about Windows 10 Desktop parts

Ms.Vaishnavi (ICT Educator)

The students of grade 6 had a fun-filled creative time during the ICT period. The online activity went into papers. What you read is right. We replicated windows 10 desktop parts in a chart. Why should we wait for the Art period alone to show our creativity? Every subject has its own art and craft and this activity stands as proof for the same. Each student showed his/her creativity to bring the desktop to the paper

Positivity is a key to Greatness

Ms.Neha (English Educator)

As human beings, we should have positive qualities like affection, love, fellow-feeling, sympathy, generosity, and a sense of sharing. The poem "A Legend of the Northland" portrays the same. Grade 9, with all their capabilities, digs deeper, into why it is important, to be positive and why we should never give "greed" any space in this world. Therefore, they aesthetically presented the legend of Northland in their own way during their English session.

Imaginary Lines for better understanding

Ms.Ruksana (Primary wing In-charge)

Learners of grade 5 had a better understanding of the imaginary lines and their role in our day to day life. The term heat zones, Equinoxes, and Solstices gave a clear idea about the seasons, different climatic conditions, longer days and shorter nights, and vice versa.

The movement of the earth around the big star brought in so many suitable conditions for the life to survive on planet earth. The tilt of the earth's rotational axis brings the different seasons. And the imaginary lines divide the entire planet into different climatic zones.

Mystery Man

A short story by Nandhini (Grade 8 Student)

Dark clouds littered the sky, rain shot down from above, making it nearly impossible to walk through the streets of New York. However, that did not stop Anna Rodriguez from walking to her job. "You can do it, you can do it," She constantly chanted, her umbrella like a shield against the cold rain. At times like this, she wondered how it would feel to be a normal college student. To stay home, watch TV, and relax with friends. To not have to worry about money or wonder when your next meal will be. But, Anna wasn't a normal college student. She worked 3 jobs, just to keep a roof over her head, and took night classes. She was an orphan her whole life and bounced from house to house within the foster system. At one of the stores she worked in, she would always envy the kids who came into the store with their families. Anna shook away those thoughts, those thoughts will not help her open the store. Those thoughts will not help her dodge puddle after puddle in the murky streets of New York. The bell rang as she unlocked the door to Starbucks, the aroma of coffee filled the air around her. Within 10 minutes, Anna had cleaned the store and was standing behind the front desk. Her grumpy mood from this morning had started to dissolve, but her gut was telling her something bad was going to happen. In her eyes, the rain brings nothing but miss fortune. It makes her already tedious schedule ten times harder and brings down her positive energy. The familiar ding of the door was the only warning Anna got, before a roughly built man stumbled into the cafe. The man's eyes were the same color as Anna, his hair was also a dirty blond. To top it off, the jawline was almost identical to hers. "Hello, what would you like today?" Anna tried to keep the anxiety out of her voice, how can this man look so similar to her? "Hi," The man began, a friendly smile plastered to his face, "I am looking for my daughter. Have you seen her?". This time, the grin on Anna's face was not forced as she said "I'm not sure, what's her name?". "Anna Rodriguez" All the air in the room seemed to be slipping out, Anna began heaving as the man finished talking. No, this is not possible. She was an orphan. Her whole life she had to fend for herself because no one cared about her. No, no, this is not possible. The thoughts running around in her head were like the thunderstorm brewing outside. At that moment, the mystery man looked and read her name tag. His eyes brightened, his smile grew wider. "I am your father"
